Immediate Past-President APD

Resident's Role in the APD

- Since 2007, two representatives have represented the APD at the Organization of Resident Representatives (ORR) of the Association of American Medical Colleges (AAMC).
- Each representative is nominated by the APD for a 2-year term.

Association of American Medical Colleges

- Composed of five member councils and organizations:
 - Council of Teaching Hospitals
 - Council of Deans
 - Council of Faculty and Academic Societies
 - Organization of Resident Representatives
 - Organization of Student Representatives

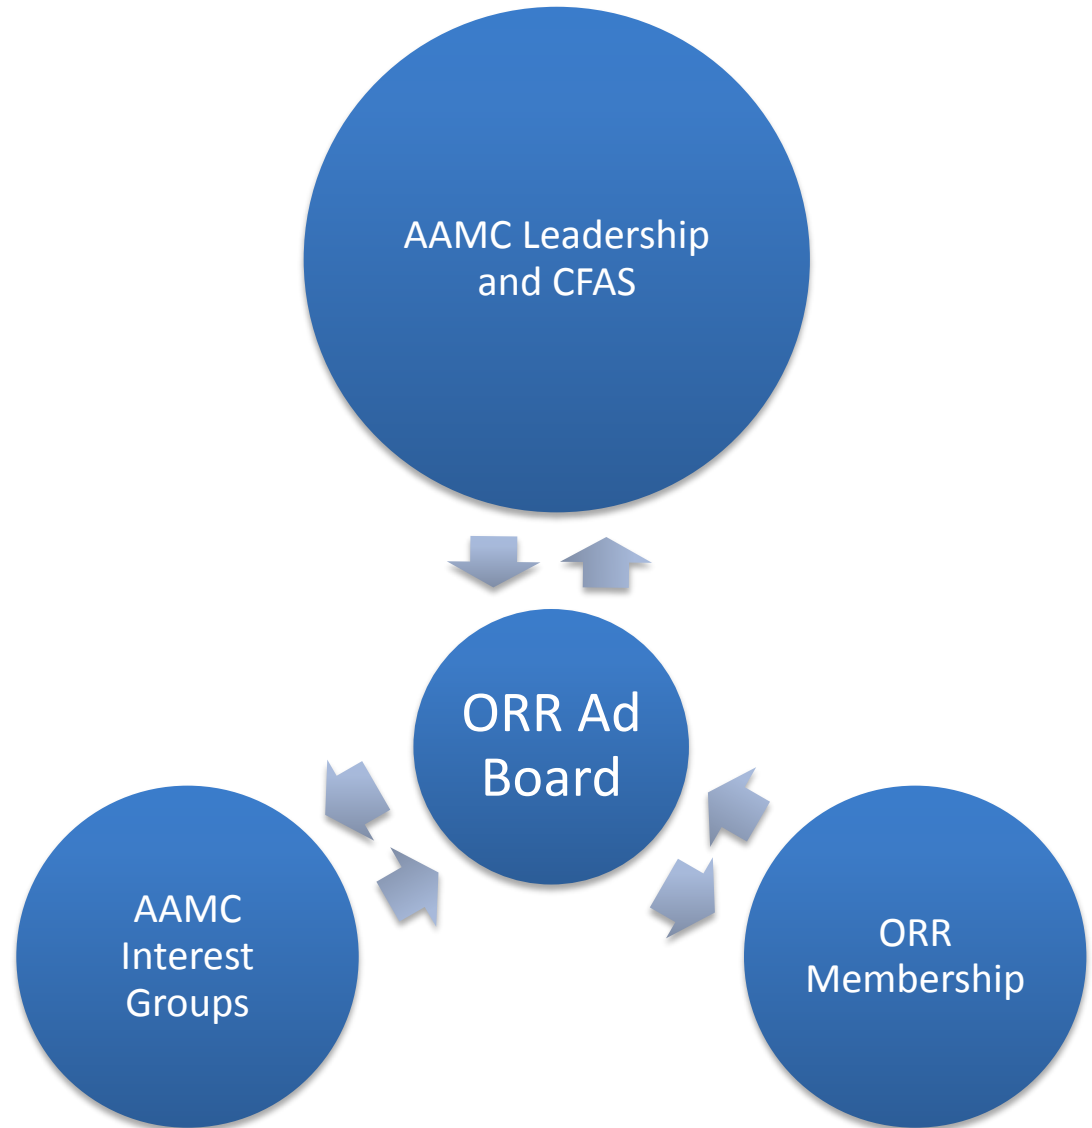

Organization of Resident Representatives (ORR)

- Two appointees from every member professional academic society
- APD appointees:
 - Outgoing: Edith Bowers, MD (UNC)
 - Kevin Gaddis, MD (UMN)
 - Incoming: Jeff Scott, MD (Case)
- Formalizes the resident perspective as regards:
 - Optimizing GME and the learning environment
 - Ensuring relevance of training
 - Preparing a highly effective physician workforce
- Leverages the unique position of the resident
- Fosters interprofessional collegiality

ORR Administrative Board

- 10-member panel tasked with facilitating the functions of the ORR and interfacing directly with AAMC leadership
 - Integrated into focus groups, task forces, and advisory panels
 - Plan and implement curriculum during biannual meetings

CFAS-ORR Professional Development Conference

- Speed mentoring for academic professional development
- Core Entrustable Professional Activities for Entering Residency (CEPAER)
- Joint plenary session on resilience in residents and faculty
- Optimizing GME Initiative update:
 - Investing in future physicians
 - Optimizing the environment for learning, care, and discovery
 - Preparing physicians and physician-scientists for the 21st century

Council of Faculty and Academic Societies (CFAS)

Established in 2013 to serve as a bidirectional conduit of engagement between senior and junior medical school faculty and specialty associations such as the APD.

Benefits of participation to the APD:

- Opportunity to:
 - participate in leadership development as well as with the development of strategies and policies in education, research, and patient care
 - bring back to the APD information from annual meetings as well as potential topics and speakers to the program committee
 - place dermatology at the table with all of our colleagues in the House of Medicine.

Thank you!
